Introduction

Intent of Manual

The purpose of the Centralia High School Style Manual is to provide standardized school-wide document formatting instructions. By utilizing these standardized document formats, students will be better able to produce quality work in a shorter amount of time. Teachers will be able to focus instruction upon their curriculum content rather than upon the mechanics of formatting the document. All CHS teachers and students should follow this manual for all written work.

Formatting Style

The formatting style and sample documents included in this manual are from the following sources: Century 21 Keyboarding & Information Processing by Jerry W. Robinson, et. al., South-Western Publishing Co., 1997; MLA Handbook of Writers of Research Papers Sixth Edition, by Joseph Gibaldi, The Modern Language Association of America, 2003; and The Research Paper by Sharon Sorenson, Amsco School Publications, 1994. Sample documents are from these texts also. Information on MLA formatting is taken from these web sites:

www.mla.org

http://owl.english.purdue.edu/handouts/research/r_mla.html

The following website has great examples for writing a paper in MLA style

<http://webster.comnet.edu/mla/index.shtml>

MLA handbooks can be found in the CHS library and any English instructor.

Software

The software instructions included are for Microsoft Word 2003 (Microsoft Word 2000 should be the same or similar). These instructions direct the user to specific menus and commands rather than toolbar icons or shortcuts. The menus and commands will appear in italics. Always click OK after selecting the final command.

Correspondence Standard Memo

A memo (memorandum) is an informal written means of communication used by individuals within the same organization. Read the sample memo for additional formatting instructions.

Your telephone call Wednesday was a really pleasant surprise. Life for both of us since college has been exciting as well as challenging, it seems. I enjoyed your call. → Press enter key 2 times

You asked me for a sample of a personal-business letter to use as a guide; here it is! This is block style (all lines start at the left margin) with open punctuation (no punctuation after the salutation and closing).

← Press enter key 2 times

If you are printing on plain paper, don't forget to include your two-line address before the date. If you use personal letterhead, begin keying with the date. You press the enter key after keying each line except in the body. Allow word wrap as you key the paragraphs in the body of the letter. Spell check and proofread your letter very carefully. → Press enter key 2 times

I am looking forward to seeing you over the Thanksgiving holiday! → Press enter key 2 times

Correspondence Business Letter

On Your
Mark

A business letter is used by a business/organization to communicate with people outside its company. Business letters will be printed on letterhead stationery so the two-line return address is not needed. The remainder of the letter resembles the personal-business letter. If the sender did not key the letter, initials of the person who keyed the letter (reference initials) are placed at the left margin after the keyed name of the sender.

Themes

Themes assigned in various classes should be formatted in the MLA (Modern Language Association) style. If research is conducted and cited, use the research paper style contained in this manual. See the sample research report for a description of distinctive features of an MLA report (pages 18-19).

On Your
Mark

Spacing After Punctuation

CHS will use two spaces after all punctuation ending a sentence to improve readability. MLA style will allow either one or two spaces at the end of a sentence as long as there is consistency. To facilitate keying citations in a Works Cited page, space one time after any punctuation mark.

Italics or Underlining

Because the type style of every letter and punctuation mark must be easily recognizable, italic type is sometimes not distinctive enough. In printed material submitted for grading and editing, therefore, words that would be italicized in a publication are usually underlined to avoid ambiguity. Check with your instructor on how to represent italicization.

Homeland, John Jake's formidable novel about the final explosive events of the nineteenth century, is the first in a series that will focus attention on a new "Jakes" family, the Crowns. → Press enter key 1 time

Multiple characters and settings are the norm for Jakes; however, this story rivets primary attention on Paul Crown, a young German immigrant. Paul leaves behind a Germany of cholera, poverty, and political upheaval only to face problems of equal magnitude in America. → Press enter key 1 time

Undaunted by a difficult ocean crossing, Paul arrives at Ellis Island penniless but naively optimistic about his future. He makes his weary way to the opulent home of his uncle, Joe Crown, a well-established brewer in Chicago. Jakes uses the Chicago setting as a backdrop for his "class struggle" motif which is central to the plot of his story. → Press enter key 1 time

Paul's uncle, Joe, and cousin, Joe Jr., are foils in this class struggle that ultimately fractures the Crown family and forces Paul to leave his uncle's home to find work on his own. The behavior and work ethic of Joe Jr., who is born to wealth and privilege in America, is juxtaposed with that of immigrant Paul. Jakes portrays Joe Jr. as spoiled and without focus, especially when compared to Paul's mature approach to life and work. → Press enter key 1 time

Jakes utilizes the character of Paul to introduce the reader to the fledgling business of moving pictures. Paul is fascinated with this new "art form" which involves him in many adventures including war, a brush with death, and marrying his first love. → Press enter key 1 time

Research Papers

Often formatting your report is almost as challenging as writing the report. To simplify this process, Centralia High School will use the MLA (Modern Language Association) style for reports and research papers. This style is widely used for scholarly manuscripts and student research papers. Distinctive features of the MLA style are described in the sample report (pages 18-19). Read this report before you begin keying your paper.

Spacing After Punctuation

CHS will use two spaces after all punctuation ending a sentence to improve readability. MLA style will allow either one or two spaces at the end of a sentence as long as there is consistency. To facilitate keying citations in a Works Cited page, space one time after any punctuation mark.

Italics or Underlining

Because the type style of every letter and punctuation mark must be easily recognizable, italic type is sometimes not distinctive enough. In printed material submitted for grading and editing, therefore, words that would be italicized in a publication are usually underlined to avoid ambiguity. Consult your instructor for their preference.

Distinctive MLA Features

• Parenthetical Citation

Parenthetical citation is used to credit the use of another's exact words or ideas. The source is placed inside parentheses one space after a phrase or a quote. The specific content for this type of notation depends upon the wording in the report. See the sample research report for examples of parenthetical notation (pages 18-19).

Examples :

- Key only the page number in parentheses if the author's name is used in the sentence or quote. (54)
- Key both author's name and page number in parentheses if the author's name is not used in the sentence or quote. (Jones 54)
- Key author's name, text, and page number if more than one work by the author is used. Separate the name from the title with a comma. (Jones, The Last Dinosaur on Earth 54)

- Long Quotations (more than 4 lines)

A quotation of more than four lines will be keyed without the use of quotation marks. It will start on a new line and will be indented one inch from the report's left margin. If this quotation contains multiple paragraphs, each one begins on a new line and is indented an additional half inch (a total of $1\frac{1}{2}$ inches from the report's left margin). At the conclusion of the quotation, a new line begins at the report's left margin of one inch. See the sample research report for an example of a long quotation (page 19).

Instructions:

- Press enter key once to create a new line for the quote
- To set one-inch indent for a long quotation
*Format/Paragraph Indents and Spacing Tab Section
- Key the quote
If it is more than one paragraph, press the tab key to indent the first line of each paragraph an additional one-half inch
- Press enter key once after keying the last line of the quote
- To remove the one-inch indent to return to report text
*Format/Paragraph Indents and Spacing Tab Section

- Works Cited

Any references used in writing the research paper are listed on the Works Cited page. These appear on a separate page following the body of the research paper. The entries for references used in the paper are arranged in alphabetical order using a hanging indent format. See sample citations on pages 14-15 and in the sample research paper (page 20). Books and magazines should be underlined. Titles of articles are enclosed in quotation marks. Within each entry, space only one time after any punctuation mark. The entry ends with a period.

Instructions

A contemporary method of documentation is appropriate for reports that contain information from only a few sources (Harcourt 448). Place the parenthetical notation at the end of a sentence, at the end of a clause, or at the end of a phrase. One space after the text cited, enclose in parentheses the last name of the source and the page number. If there are two authors, key both names; if there is no author, use a shortened version of the title. If you are citing more than one work by any author, key the author's last name, title of the work, and the page number. Separate the name and title of the work with a comma. ← Press enter key 1 time

The MLA-style (Modern Language Association of America) report that is illustrated here is a popular style that can be used. There are several key differences between this style and other formats. An MLA-style report has one-inch side, top, and bottom margins. The entire report is double-spaced, including quotations, documentation, and the space below the title. → Press enter key 1 time

key 1 time*

Another difference is the way that long quotations are keyed in the MLA style. In the MLA Handout for Writers of Research Papers, Gibaldi provides these guides for keying long quotations:

Press enter to start a new line then set the 1" Paragraph Indentation

If a quotation runs four or more typed lines, set it off by beginning a new line indented one inch from the left margin; key it (still using double-spacing) without adding quotation marks. A colon may introduce a quotation displayed in this way, though sometimes the context may require a different mark of punctuation, or none at all. If you quote only a single paragraph, do not indent the first line more than the rest. If your quote is more than one paragraph in length, indent line one (only) of each paragraph an additional half inch. A parenthetical reference to the long quotation follows the last word of the quotation. (73)

Press enter to start a new line then remove the 1" Paragraph Indentation

Continue to double-space the text following the quotation, indenting only the first line of each paragraph one-half inch (five spaces). An example of the "Works Cited" page is illustrated on page 3. Notice that it is also double-spaced and that entries are arranged in alphabetical order with the second and succeeding lines of each entry indented one-half inch.

A MLA research paper does not need a title page. If your teacher requires a title page, format it according to the instructions you are given. Usually you will omit the author, course, teacher, and date from page one of the paper when a title page is used.

Page one will contain the running head with author's last name page number and the title of the paper. See the sample title page and sample page one of the paper on pages 22 and 23.

The MLA-style (Modern Language Association of America) report that is illustrated here is a method that can be used. There are several key differences between this style and other formats. An MLA-style report has one-inch side, top, and bottom margins. The entire report is double-spaced, including quotations, documentation, and the space below the title. ← Press enter
key 1 time

key 1 time

Outlines

An outline organizes the writer's material; it shows the order in which topics will be presented and the relationships among the information. Topic outlines are more popular, but sentence outlines are sometimes used. In a topic outline, use words, phrases, or clauses; in a sentence outline, use complete sentences. Do not mix the two.

If your teacher requires a title page, format it according to the instructions you are given. If an outline is required with a research paper, include a thesis statement before the first point in the outline.

Key the outline

- Follow the sample outline document for proper format
- Use the tab key to align the points in the outline
- Save document before keying File/Save As Enter filename
- Save document every 5" while keying File/Save
- Spell check Tools/Spelling and Grammar
- Proofread carefully
- Print document File/Print

Remember

- Keep points of similar importance ranked equally
- A single subpoint may not stand alone
- Points that are equal in importance should be parallel in form
- Align points of the same rank (I, II, III, or A, B, C for example)
- Remember to use your tab key not the space bar to align points
- Do not key periods at the end of the phrase in a topic outline

Tables

To make data easier to read and understand, it is often arranged in rows and columns—a table. Rows are horizontal and columns are vertical; the intersection of a row and column is called a cell. Data is keyed into each cell and formatted. The entire table may be centered horizontally. The borders may be displayed or hidden. Use the table menu and commands to create a table.

To create a table

- Position the cursor on the line where the table should begin
- Press enter key twice to leave room for title
